New Wills and Deeds Storage Services

Fast expanding Macleish Littlestone Cowan has just issued news of some new services they will be introducing in January 2008.

The safekeeping and storage of wills is a major issue and concern. Only 70% of the UK's population makes a will and too often no arrangements have been made for its safekeeping. After a loved one dies, it is impossible to locate or to know if it is the last will they made.

The firm will be introducing a new service for clients and non-clients in January. The firm will be extending its secure safekeeping arrangements for wills and offering an unique registration and safekeeping service to solve this problem.

Partner in charge of the introduction of the new service Robert Littlestone announced "We are always looking at new services that our clients need. Keep a will securely and knowing its whereabouts is essential. Too often we have found a will has been lost or destroyed or can't be located. The new service will solve this problem and bring security and peace of mind. A full announcement will be made in early January."

The firm also intends introducing a deeds storage facility for clients and further details of this service will also be announced on its release in January.
